ANTHONY D. WAGNER

Professor of Psychology and Neuroscience, Anthony D. Wagner will deliver this year's keynote address. As the current Director of the Stanford Memory Laboratory, and the Co-Director of the Center for Cognitive and Neurobiological Imaging, Dr. Wagner continues research on several interest areas, namely: memory encoding and research mechanisms; interactions between declarative, nondeclarative, and working memory; and neurocognitive aging. Dr. Wagner's engaging teaching ability and his evident passion for all things neuroscience—especially memory—earned him the Dean's Award for Excellence in Graduate Education in 2010-2011. The SUPC is delighted to host Dr. Wagner and is looking forward to welcoming him as a part of this year's conference!
